

VICTORY 1918

THE LAST 100 DAYS

The First World War was won in the last hundred days.

The Hundred Days campaign – a series of bitterly fought battles along the Western Front between August and November 1918 – contributed decisively to ending the war. The Canadian Corps, forever after marked as elite “shock troops,” played a key role in the Allied victory.

One hundred years after the end of the war, Tim Cook and J. L. Granatstein delve into this series of battles in a visual and evocative souvenir catalogue. Artworks, artifacts and historical photos are woven together with the powerful stories of Canadians who participated in this costly combat.

MILITARY HISTORY

October 2018

Paperback

$9.95

6" x 6" · 120 pages

56 illustrations

978-0-660-25254-4

HOW TO ORDER

In person: at the Gift Shop

Online: historymuseum.ca/boutique

By phone: 1-800-555-5621 (North America)
819-776-7000 (NCR)

By email: publications@historymuseum.ca

By fax: 1-819-776-8535

DR. TIM COOK, C.M., is a historian at the Canadian War Museum; DR. J. L. GRANATSTEIN, O.C., is the Museum's former Director and CEO. Both are award-winning authors, of 11 and more than 70 books on Canadian military and political history, respectively.

